DAVIS THEATRE.

Three Big Kelth Acts and Triangle Feature DeWolf Hopper-Charlie Chapin Here Tomorrow in "The Floorwalker."

If you haven't seen the show at the Davis this week you cannot do better than visit this popular playhouse today. The vaudeville and photoplays are befire than anything ever seen here. Heading the show is The Lester Trio, two women and a man, who present a comedy variety skit entitled The Bathroom Mystery, this is one of the cleverest acts in vaudeville. The second number on the bill, is Welcome and Welcome, in a novelty symmastic act, the physical girl and the main on his hands, and the third act is Madam Timmons, the lady with the golden voice, who is songs. For those who enjoy good singing this is a positive treat.

The Triangle feature photoplay for this bill is called Sunshine Dad, with DeWolf Hopper, the celebrated lightmate actor as the star. The story revolves around the theft of a diamond band from a Hindo shrine, and there are many exerting moments during the five reels of this picture. Featured with DeWolf Hopper is Fay Tincher, who wears some striking black and white dresses. She is the girl who made famous black and white dresses. THE BATTLE CRY OF PEACE. Coming to The Davis Theatre.

The most timely theatrical event of the season will occur when the massive film spectacle The Batmassive film spectacle The Battle Cry of Peace, comes to the Davis theatre next week, there being two shows daily, at 2 and 8 p. m. Right on the heels of the agitation for preparedness, in which cause President Wilson has most emphatically taken the affirmative side, it presents with comprehensive and emphatic strength the deplorable condition of the country in the event of there being a war forced upon us, but with the yet unplumbed resources of the moving picture, it embraces in of the moving picture, it embraces in the presentation of the truths, a force lent through the power of story and drama that so clothes the pur-pose that the intention is never ap-parent, and thereby the force is acparent, and thereby the force is accentuated and enhanced. It is drama enlightening and entertaining but above all it is a spectacle more elevating and inspiring than the spirit of battle appealing to the most responsive trait of humans, the love of country and home. During the engagement here all seats will be reserved, the sale beginning Friday.

AT THE AUDITORIUM. Return Engagement of "Hyp Today and Thursday.

Following is an outline of the famous picture play, Hypocrites, which will be the principle attraction here today and Thursday: today and Thursday:

The prologue—An ascetic monk toils in a secluded corner of the cloister upon a statue called Truth. It is the naked figure of a woman. His brother monks are curious to see the statue, but are forbidden to do so. A venturesome seul from among them scales the wall and is blinded by one look at the statue. When it is completed, the entire population for miles around gathers for a fete at which the abbot unveils the statue. The people are horrified at the nude figure and shrink from it—all but a little child. The soldiers kill the sculptor in their blind rage, and the nun who is in love with the monk weepingly is in love with the monk weepingly kneels by his side, accompanied by a girl garbed in black, the badge of her profession. As the nun kneels by the dead man, her white robe turns to black, as a sign of mourning.

The play—The monk, now pastor of a present-day church, delivers a scathing sermon on hypocrites. The various people in his congregation are stirred by it according to the measure of their own hypocrity. The atture of their own hypocrity. are of their own hypocrisy. The pillar of the church congratulates him upon the sermon—and demands that the vestrymen ask for his resignation.
The choir singer, who loves him, is overwhelmed by the power of his words. The girl in black kneels in humble penitence.

During the sermon the pastor see a choir boy reading a Sunday sup-plement. He takes the paper from him after the service and finds in it a reproduction of Faugeron's great painting. "The Truth" He falls asleep and dreams that Truth calls him. He attempts to follow and lead his congregation to her. He lead his congregation to her. He struggles up the tortuous path over which Truth leads him, but various factors thwart the efforts of his people to follow him. The rich man's money bags are too heavy for himand so his little child, though she springs nimbly up the path, is recalled by her selfish parents. The fop and his fastidious companion turn back when they soil their gloves. The girl in black finds the broad road leading back down hill irresistible. Finding that he cannot lead his flock to Truth, he persuades her to come to them. This she does, exposing the shallowness of the politician's honesty, the veneer of society, the mockery of love, the blindness of the average parents and the farcical modesty of the modern "smart" stri.

The shock of Truth's revelations thills the idealist, and he is found dead with the newspaper in his hand—a fact which, in the eyes of the world, condemns him as a hypocrite. Every man and woman in Christendom can learn something from this mesterly production.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

The feature day is, Golden Lies, Essential day is, Golden Lies, Essential three parts.

Thomas Devlin, a good-for-nothing, sail secones engaged to Vera Walton. Edward, his brother, is a postman, and an homest, hard-working chap: Edward meretely loves Vera also, and realising that his brother would hever be a worthy husband for her, he tries to give Tom advice, but he refuses fo liesen, One night, Vera gives a historian party.

and all escape except Vera. Edward rescues her, but not until she has been blinded. Tom's interest in her begins to wane and finally he leaves the country. Vera pines for him and wonders why he does not write.

Finally her mother requests Edward to write letters daily to Vera and make believe they are from Tom. He does so, and Vera immediately begins to improve. Somehow she suspects the ruse and continually asks for Tom. Edward is again called upon to impersonate his brother, and marry her. He does so, For several years they live happily together, Vera being blind, thinks she married Tom. Finally Tom returns to her, but she sends him away, teiling him that she had known of the deception, but had really grown to love Edward.

OUR PUBLIC ENEMIES.

If you build a line of rallway over bills and barran bands.
Giving lucrative employment to about a million hands;
If you cause a score of cities by your right of way to rise.
Where there formerly was nothing but some rattlesnakes and files.
If when bringing kule to others you acquire a little kale.
Then you've surely robbed the peepul and you ought to be in jall.

If by planting and by tolking you have won some wealth and fame.

It will make no odds how squarely you have played your little game;
Your success is proof sufficient that you are a public foe.

You're a soulless malefactor; to the dump you ought to go.

It's a crime for you to prosper where so many others fall;
You have surely robbed the peepul and you ought to be in jail.

Be a chronic politician, deal in superheated air;
Roast the bank and money burons, there is always safety there;
But to sound the note of business is a crime so mean and base,
That a fellow guilty of it ought to go and bide his face.
Change the builders' song triumphant for the politicians' wall,
Or we'll think you've robbed the peopul and we'll pack you off to jail.

—Baltimore American

At evening when I go to bed, I see the stars shine overhead; They are the little daisies bright. That dot the meadows of the night And often when I'm dreaming so, Across the sky the moon will go; She is a lady sweet and fair, Who comes to gather daisles there.

For when at morning I arise,
There's not a star left in the skies;
Sho's picked them all and dropped the down
Into the meadows of the town.
—Robert Louis Stevenson
